

Andrew Beklemishev

Andrew is currently the Vice President for the CIS Region at International Data Corporation, where he continues to drive the company's presence and influence in the rapidly evolving information and communication technology markets. He is an experienced international manager with a strong focus on business development. Digital Transformation strategies are his passion, whether for a small business, multinational oil and gas company, a city or a whole country.

Andrew Beklemishev oversees and participates in all IDC research, market intelligence consulting, and IDC events in the CIS region. He has 20+ years of experience in IT and telecommunications and specializes in digital transformation strategies for businesses, cities, and countries.

Andrew takes corporate social responsibility seriously and is engaged in numerous non-profit activities. He is the chairman of the Public Council of the Ministry of Digital Development, Innovations, and Aerospace Industry of the Republic of Kazakhstan, and a vice president of the International Academy of Chief Information Officers (CIO), a global non-profit organization aimed at advancing CIO leadership. He is also a board member and co-founder of the Kazakhstan Society of IT Managers, president of the Central Asia Chapter of the HEC Alumni Association, a council member of the Chief Information Officer (CIO) Club of Uzbekistan, and a member of the Strategy Committee of the TechnoWomen nonprofit organization. Andrew has also been actively involved as a member of the Board of Trustees at Almaty Management University, contributing his expertise in education and management.

Prior to joining IDC in 2007, Andrew's experience included work with Central Asian governments, USAID, the UNDP, UNESCAP, the World Bank, and the European Commission, as well as with various nongovernmental organizations and private companies.

Andrew Beklemishev holds an Executive MBA with Honors in Leadership and Entrepreneurship from HEC School of Management. He also earned a Master's degree in Management from the International Academy of Business and pursued studies in International Business and Marketing at Rochester Institute of Technology.
