

Natalia Bukhshtaber

Natalia Bukhshtaber came to the Lomonosov Moscow State University Business School in 2010 in position of the Head of Quality Assurance Department and took the position of Associate Dean in September 2013. Before joining the Business School she worked at other universities, governmental and business organisations in Russia and abroad. She has an extensive experience in higher education, including the development and administration of international academic and post-experience EMBA and MBA programmes alongside with more than 10 years of teaching at Masters, MBA and DBA programmes of Russian and foreign business schools. During her professional career she has been actively involved in various consulting and research projects, invited as a speaker to international and Russian conferences on high education. Currently she is a member of the PRME Working Group on Anti-Corruption that develops best-practices and encourages business schools' curriculum change to educate responsible leaders and thus contribute to the improvement of management practice.

