International Management Teachers Academy
Developing a new generation of management educators for the new generation of business leaders

CEEMAN was founded in 1993 as a management and leadership association for the world’s transitional economies in Central and Eastern Europe and Central Asia at a time when there was a pressing need to develop high-quality management education offerings in these regions to support and accelerate their successful economic and social restructuring.

Since its inception, CEEMAN has championed holistic and interactive approaches to management education that emphasize creativity, engagement, ethics, and general principles of responsible management. CEEMAN places high priority on developing a new generation of management educators for a new generation of business and other leaders in transitional and dynamic societies. Faculty development is a key driver in realizing this objective.

IMTA Objectives, Delivery, and Expanding Reach

The International Management Teachers Academy (IMTA) was launched in 2000 to provide an affordable high-quality faculty development program for management institutions in Central and Eastern Europe and Central Asia. IMTA aims to enable motivated and high-potential faculty members to improve their skills, approaches, attitudes, and educational materials to contribute more confidently and more effectively to the design and delivery of excellent learning experiences in their institutions.

To achieve excellence in IMTA’s program design and delivery, CEEMAN recruits teaching faculty from prestigious management institutions in Western Europe, North America, and Central and Eastern Europe. These faculty members have received many awards for teaching and research excellence and have a passion for transferring what they have discovered about effective learning to a new generation of management educators.

As IMTA’s international reputation for excellence matured, management institutions from Western Europe, the United States, Latin America, South-East Asia, the Middle East, and Sub-Saharan Africa began to send their faculty to join this program. Since its launch in 2000, more than 620 faculty members from more than 160 institutions in over 50 countries have graduated from IMTA.

With the goal of IMTA maintaining a subsidized and affordable faculty development program of the highest quality and providing special scholarships for institutions in need, the IMTA Foundation was established in 2013 to attract new sources of external funding.

“I learnt more than I could have expected in such a short time from the wisdom and experience of all the instructors and my colleagues. I formed what I think will become lasting friendships with a number of people.”

Mark Chong
Associate Professor at Singapore Management University, Singapore
What Differentiates IMTA from Other Respected International Faculty Development Programs?

In common, respected international faculty development programs emphasize skills building, personal development for faculty members, understanding of student learning requirements, discussion of a variety of instructional platforms and methodologies, best practices in management education and research, and faculty roles as educators, researchers, and administrators. They include participant coaching and are delivered by successful and experienced faculty teams.

IMTA differentiates its offer in the following ways:

• The IMTA program design includes one week of general principles for all participants and one week during which participants and faculty work in smaller groups to focus on the challenges and requirements of providing excellent learning outcomes in the context of specific academic disciplines.

• IMTA is delivered by a small core team of faculty, each of whom provides several program sessions. The small size of the faculty team and the small size of working groups in the second week of the program allow faculty to gain familiarity with and provide individual counseling and coaching to IMTA program participants.

• Relative to competing offers, IMTA places more emphasis on the philosophy and effective delivery of case study learning and case writing, on the principles of responsible management, on managing the trade-offs between faculty roles of educators, researchers, administrators and consultants, and on ways to cultivate the power of research-based teaching.

• The venue of IMTA in the small and beautiful lakeside town of Bled, Slovenia at the modern facilities of IEDC-Bled School of Management with its extensive art collection provides a peaceful and stimulating environment for reflection and learning.
What Does IMTA Look for When Selecting Course Participants?

- a passion for the profession of management education and a commitment to self-improvement
- the potential to become future leaders in their profession and in their institutions
- a willingness to engage fully in classroom and study group discussions and exercises
- at least two years of teaching experience and English language fluency
- strong endorsement, financial support, and encouragement from their institutions

What Can Participants Expect from IMTA?

- a well-tested, finely-tuned, and successful faculty development program designed to expand their understanding of best practices in management education while also contributing to their own personal and professional development
- an intensive 10-day program
- an opportunity for productive networking and future collaboration with other IMTA participants and program alumni
- in some cases, a life-changing experience (according to the testimonials of IMTA graduates)

Why Should Management Education Institutions Sponsor Faculty Members to Participate in IMTA?

- Motivated and highly qualified faculty members are a key success factor for management education institutions that are committed to providing excellent program offerings to their clients.
- IMTA provides faculty development programs of the highest quality at affordable cost.
- By sponsoring IMTA participants, an institution signals its commitment to developing faculty capabilities that are aligned with its objective of providing excellence in program offerings while recognizing and rewarding the efforts and potential of faculty members who can contribute most to reaching this objective.
- IMTA graduates can transfer their program learning and insights to other faculty members. By sponsoring more than one IMTA participant over several years (the most common approach), institutions can develop a common language and a shared approach to disseminating and enhancing best management education principles.

“I would like to express my personal gratitude, as well as thank you on behalf of our university for the excellent program in which our faculty members participated. I met them today and they are full of enthusiasm and exceptional memories of the two weeks they spent in Bled. Thank you again, and we shall definitely continue our cooperation. We are planning to send more delegates.”

Olga Saginova
Head of the Comparative Economics Department at Plekhanov Russian University of Economics, Russia
IMTA Program Design and Topics

IMTA is an intensive and highly interactive program with a well-balanced focus on general and discipline-specific aspects of management education.

WEEK 1 of IMTA focuses on topics that are of general interest and relevance to all IMTA participants. These sessions benefit from the multi-disciplinary composition and diversity of the IMTA faculty and participants. During this week, particular emphasis is placed on learning and teaching with cases and project work, course design principles, assessing learning outcomes, developing effective teaching strategies, case writing and the multiple roles of faculty members.

By blending pre-program individual preparation and in-program lectures and discussions, individual preparation, small group discussions and teamwork, case discussions, simulations, role-play, presentations, and other work methods, IMTA positions its participants at the center of the learning process.

WEEK 2 of IMTA focuses on the challenges, requirements and facilitators for developing and delivering first-class educational experiences in the context of specific academic disciplines that are selected in accordance with individual participant interests.

Depending on the interest expressed by program participants, Week 2 is typically structured to accommodate three to four small group tracks selected from the following academic disciplines:

- Business in Society
- Leadership and Change Management
- Marketing Management
- Strategic Management
- Other disciplines may be introduced in case of sufficient interest

The smaller class sizes in Week 2 allow more opportunities for faculty counseling on issues of concern and relevance to individual IMTA participants.

“IMTA was two of the most intensive and rewarding learning weeks of my professional life.”

Jennifer Pope
Associate Professor at
Grand Valley State University, USA
The IMTA Faculty

A high-profile team of experienced and internationally renowned professors who have received many individual awards for teaching and research excellence will share their personal experiences and the best practices of their institutions.

“The IMTA program helped me realize what kind of teacher I have been, and what kind of teacher I want to be for my students.”

Jamil Paolo Francisco
Associate Professor at AIM-Asian Institute of Management, Philippines

---

Arshad Ahmad
Vice-Chancellor at Lahore University of Management Sciences, Pakistan and previously Vice-Provost at McMaster University, Canada

JB Kassarjian
Professor Emeritus at IMD, Switzerland and Professor of Management at Babson College, USA

Anthony F. Buono
Professor of Management and Sociology and Executive Director of Bentley Alliance for Ethics and Social Responsibility, USA

Krzysztof Oblój
Professor of Strategic Management at the School of Management of Warsaw University and Kozminski University, Poland

Jim Ellert
Academic Director of IMTA, Professor Emeritus and former Associate Dean of Faculty at IMD, Switzerland and visiting Professor at IEDC-Bled School of Management, Slovenia

Joe Pons
President of AXIOMA Marketing Consultants and previously Marketing Professor at IESE International Graduate School of Management, Spain
Admission Process

Potential participants may apply by registering online and submitting a letter of recommendation from their institution’s dean, a senior faculty member or mentor.

Early applications are encouraged to ensure that the final selection of Week 2 disciplines better reflects the candidates’ interests.

Shortlisted candidates are interviewed before the final selection of program participants.

Tuition Fee and Accommodation

Subsidized by CEEMAN, IMTA offers most preferential program fees for CEEMAN member institutions and individual members of the association. A limited number of scholarships is available for participants from Africa, Latin America, India and China.

Program fees do not include travel costs, meals, and accommodation expenses.

The IMTA program management team can assist participants with their search for accommodation in Bled.

“Overwhelming, transformational, inspiring. Not just teaching, life makes more sense to me now.”

Katarina Krapež
Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Management of University of Primorska, Slovenia

IMTA Alumni Association

Established in 2006, the IMTA Alumni Association provides a platform through which IMTA alumni and CEEMAN continue to provide support for the further professional development of IMTA alumni and their collaboration with IMTA alumni from other institutions.

IMTA-Related Programs

As a program aimed at developing well-rounded management educators, IMTA has become a platform upon which complementary programs are being developed and implemented. They include the Consultancy for Management Educators Program as well as the IMTA Educational Material Development Program, which consists of a case writing module and a research and publishing module.

“IMTA is a unique management faculty development program, and I can just highly recommend it to anyone with a passion for learning and teaching.”

Dietmar Sternad
Lecturer & Program Director at Carinthia University of Applied Science, Austria

More Information

www.ceeman.org/imta
CEEMAN is the International Association for Management Development in Dynamic Societies. Established in 1993, CEEMAN has become a global network that fosters the quality of management development and change processes by developing education, research, consulting, information, networking support, and other related services for management development institutions and corporations operating in dynamically changing environments. Its holistic approach to the phenomena of change and leadership development builds on a specific value platform that celebrates innovation, creativity, and respect for cultural values, and promotes the principles of responsible management education.

IEDC-Bled School of Management, facing Alpine Lake Bled, Slovenia, provides a stimulating environment for learning and reflection.