

Alexander Oganov

Alexander Oganov is founder and CEO of Uniweb.ru – Russia's leading enabler for universities in rolling out online academic programs. He is a graduate of the Russian Presidential Academy School of Law (2003) and a holder of an MBA degree from the Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto (class of 2007). Alexander's work experience includes foreign economic relations at Transneft – Russia's oil pipeline monopoly, project management at the PBN Company's Moscow office and new product commercialization at Tessonics – a Canadian start-up focused on innovation for the automotive industry. In 2004 Alexander co-founded Mydropbox.com – a leader in plagiarism detection technology, which was later sold to Blackboard in 2007. In 2010 he founded Uniweb.ru, which now manages 16 academic partnerships across a medium of 30 different academic programs and has a current enrolment of roughly 5,000 students. Alexander is also an investor in Verold.com, Lifeline.ru and Petrobright.
