

Lin Zhou

Lin Zhou has been the dean of Antai College of Economics and Management of Shanghai Jiao Tong University, China, since 2010. He was one of the founding members for Shanghai Advanced Institute of Finance at SJTU, leading the team on the ground from 2008 to 2010. Before joining SJTU, he taught in many universities in US, including Yale University, Duke University, and Arizona State University.

Dean Zhou is active in many professional associations for business education. He is currently on the Board of Directors of AACSB, and serves as Chair of Asia-Pacific Advisory Council of AACSB. He is also a voting member of the EQUIS Awarding Body. He is a member of the National Supervisory Committee on Post-Graduate Management Education, China.

Antai College of Economics and Management is one of the leading business schools in China. It is the first “triple-crowned” Chinese business school, being accredited by EQUIS in 2008, AMBA in 2008, and AACSB in 2011. Three programs of Antai are currently ranked by Financial Times with EMBA in the 17th place globally, MBA in the 55th place, and MS in the 44th place. Its customized executive education program is ranked 16th globally by FT in May 2015.

Dean Zhou’s research interests are microeconomic theory and game theory. He has published in many leading academic journals, including Econometrica, Review of Economic Studies, and Journal of Economic Theory. He is an elected fellow of the Econometric Society. He received his bachelor degree from Fudan University, China, in 1982, and his doctoral degree from Princeton University, USA, in 1989.