Renoma

Department store Wertheim (now Renoma) was built by Hermann Dernburg's design in the end of the 20's.

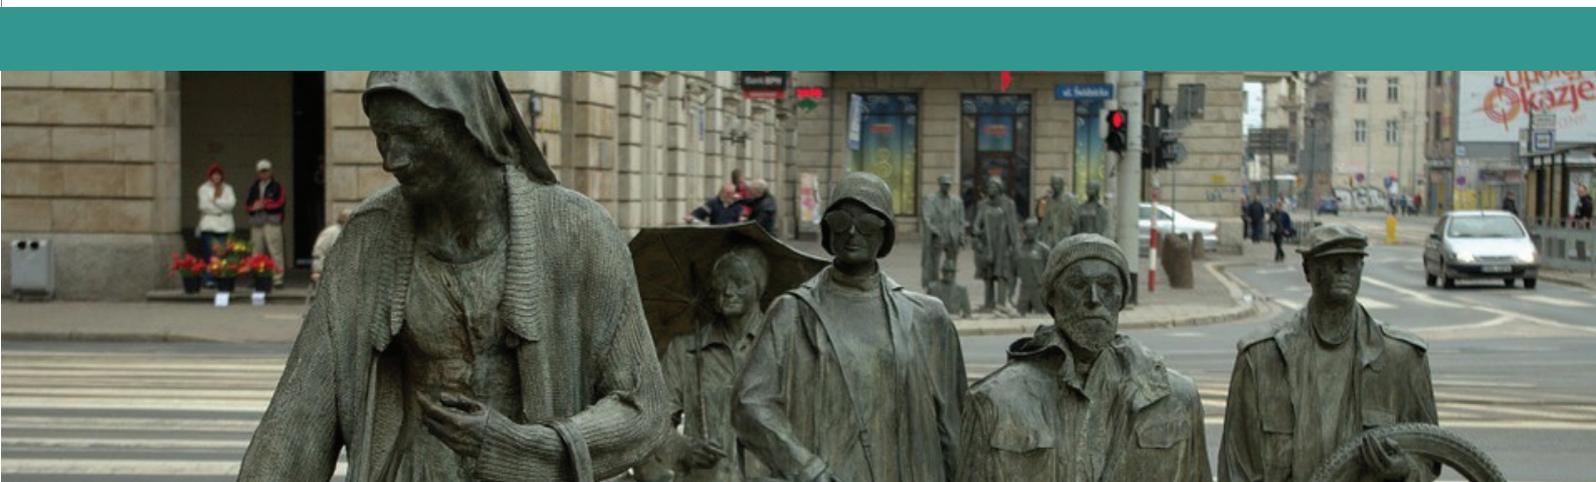

From the moment of its opening, Wertheim aroused the admiration of not only residents and visitors, but also the contemporary construction environment.

The monumental building, erected on a plan similar to a trapezoid, was an example of modern architecture and at the time it was the largest shopping center in Breslau, with an area of 35 thousand square meters. Many innovative solutions have been used in it, including huge commercial spaces, escalators and modern heating system.

University of Wrocław

Thanks to the Jesuit stars, the two-faculty University of Leopoldine is founded in Wrocław around 1702. As a result of the Catholic connection of Leopoldina from Wrocław and the Protestant Viadrina from Frankfurt, a state university is being established (1811). The new university educates young people of different nationalities and faiths in five faculties: Catholic theology, Protestant theology, law, medicine and philosophy. Later, in 1945 with the capitulation of Festung Breslau, the history of German higher education in these areas ends. In May, the Scientific and Cultural Group arrives in Wrocław, with the core of professors from Lviv universities. On August 24, the Government of National Unity decides to transform former German universities in Wrocław into Polish state-owned academic schools. From then on, the University and the Polytechnic in Wrocław will function as one university for the next few years.

Słodowa Island

Słodowa Island belongs to the Oder archipelago located to the north of Rynek. Apart from Słodowa, the other Wrocław Islands are: Bielarska, Młyńska, Piasek, Daliowa and Tamka. All year long the Island is under the “reign” of students. During summer weekends there are many attractions on the Island: on Fridays and Saturdays open-air cinema, Saturday concerts, board games, sport activities, on Sundays dance classes or open-air library.

Cathedral Island

It is the oldest part of the city of Wrocław. The first constructions on Ostrów Tumski were built in the 10th century by the Piast dynasty, and were made from wood. The first building from solid material was St. Martin's chapel, built probably at the beginning of the eleventh century by Benedictine monks.

Market Hall

It was built according to the design of Richard Plüddemann and Heinrich Küster in the years 1906-1908. Today, over 190 points operate on two levels, it is not only a shopping destination, but also a tourist attraction. During the Second World War, the building did not suffer substantially. Initially, it served as a stable for Red Army soldiers, but it soon began to be used as intended. At the beginning of the 1980s, the hall, managed by PSS Spółem, underwent a major refurbishment. In 2016, its façade was renovated
