

Deborah Somers

Based in London, Deb heads up the Graduate Management Admission Council's European operations. She and her team support and partner with business schools, candidates and industry organisations in the region to help connect talent and aspiration with opportunity. Before joining GMAC in 2009, Deb worked for Lehman Brothers corporate communications team at the investment bank's European Headquarters in London. Prior to this Deb worked at London Business School for over 10 years in programme management and student services, faculty management and latterly in development where she was responsible for donor stewardship. Deb holds a first degree in Russian from the University of Birmingham and an MBA from Henley Business School.